

WARSAW HUMANITARIAN EXPO

RESPONSIBLE BUSINESS FOR HUMANITARIAN EMERGENCIES

Warsaw, June 11, 2019

wer. styczeń 2019

OPENING CEREMONY	Opening remarks - President Andrzej Duda
GUEST OF HONOUR KEY SPEECH	David Miliband
FUTURE OF HUMANITARIAN AID  HIGH LEVEL PANEL	The humanitarian system is under increasing pressure due to growing fragility and complex crises. New types of partnerships and actors must bring their specific skills and expertise to address this challenges of changing world. What are the challenges for humanitarian action? Who are the key current and new actors and do they hold the answer to the future of humanitarian financing? How can the accountability, coordination and effectiveness of all diverse resources be improved? MODERATOR: Wojciech Jagielski (author of reportages, war correspondent)/Artur Domosławski (author of reportages)/Roger McShane (The Economist)          PANELISTS: Jacek Czaputowicz (Poland's Minister of Foreign Affairs); H.R.H Princess Haya Bint Al Hussein (DIHAD); David Beasley (Executive Director, UN WFP); Mark Lowcock (Under Secretary General, UN OCHA); Christos Stylianides (EU Commissioner, Humanitarian Aid &amp; Crisis Management); Bernard Kouchner (Medecins sans Frontieres); Joanne Liu (president, Medecins sans Frontieres); Miroslav Lajčák (Slovak Minister of Foreign Affairs, former president of the UNGA)
MOTIVATIONS, PROSPECTS, AND CHALLENGES. BUSINESS AND ETHICS IN HUMANITARIAN EMERGENCIES AND POST CONFLICT SITUATIONS  PANEL DISCUSSION	The change in nature of humanitarian crisis forces us to develop a new way of thinking of how to work more effectively and efficiently. Panel will analyze and identify ways for the private sector to play more substantial role in assisting during humanitarian emergencies and post conflict situations. What are the possibilities for business to engage into humanitarian aid? What can be the added value of business engagement in more timely, adequate and effective humanitarian response? Is the private sector doing its share? And even if it does, how can we develop more effective and mutually beneficial cooperation? What role can emerging economies play in humanitarian aid? Is it still possible to provide ethical humanitarian aid? How can we assure that the humanitarian aid remains principled? MODERATOR: Lise Kingo (CEO &amp; Ex. Dir. UNGC) (tbn)          PANELISTS: David Shearer (UNMISS, Special Representative of the Secretary-General); Ulrika Modeer (Bureau For External relations and Advocacy, UNDP); Agnès Marcaillou (UN Secretariat); Jacek Sz wajcowski (DOZ); Federico Borello (Executive Director, Center for Civilians in Conflict); Nicoletta Giordano (Head of International Partnerships Division, IOM)

WARSAW HUMANITARIAN EXPO

NEW TECHNOLOGIES AND INNOVATIONS FOR HUMANITARIAN EMERGENCIES PANEL DISCUSSION	The number of people in need due to humanitarian crises resulting from conflicts, climate change-related events or population growth is on the rise. The crises are becoming more complex while, at the same time, technological progress advances at an ever increasing pace worldwide. Does technology offer means for preventing or mitigating the implications of crises? How can the innovations be truly impactful? While data empowers, data is also something that we need to guard and data is something that we need to respect. Is it possible to develop applications or algorithms and maintain a clear understanding of security and safety? MODERATOR: Edwin Bendyk          PANELISTS: ASSECO, Monique Parriat (DG ECHO), Christopher Earney (Head of Innovation Service, UNHCR); Damian Granosik/Piotr Pańczyk (authors of SkyShelter.zip); Diane Coyle/Patrick Meier (authors of the report “New Technologies in Emergencies and Conflicts); Nan Buzard (Head of Innovation, ICRC)
HEALTH IN DANGER PANEL DUSCUSSION	Populations affected by armed conflicts and natural disasters experience severe public health consequences as a result of food insecurity, population displacement, the effects of weapons, and the collapse of basic health services. How we should develop the evidence base for humanitarian health interventions and explore mechanisms for its promotion? How to build trust and understanding for health improvements? How to implement timely, efficient, and effective relief programmes? MODERATOR: Jan Emeryk Rościszewski (Szpitalnik, PZKM, BPO BP)          PANELISTS: Maciej Polkowski (Head of Initiative Health Care in Danger, ICRC); Leonard Rubenstein (Chair, Safeguarding Health in Conflict); David Cone (Doctors without Borders, Washington, DC); Marcel Fountaine (Director, Office of Emerging Programme, UNICEF); Rick Brennan (Director of Emergency Operations, WHO)